Advertisement Israel has launched air strikes against Hezbollah positions in Lebanon after militants captured two Israeli soldiers in the southern part of the country. The capture came a day after Hezbollah rebels killed an Israeli soldier in a cross-border raid. Israel has confirmed there were two of its soldiers and that they were killed in the cross-border raid. The captured soldiers are the first kidnapped Israeli soldiers since 2006. Here are the latest developments in the unfolding crisis: Humanitarian crisis Violence has erupted in the south of Lebanon for the first time since the end of the Lebanese civil war. The border crossing of Tsafon has been closed, and phone lines have been cut to the area. Desperate parents have been trying to find out if their children have been seized. A source in the Lebanese army was quoted as saying that Israel had fired more than 50 artillery shells inside Lebanon on Saturday. Two of the shells landed on a local church, causing minor damage. In the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights, reporters have seen four military vehicles moving into positions overlooking the Lebanese town of Tsafun. Israeli military spokesman Lt Col Richard Ross said Israel would "continue to respond and act in accordance with its security requirements". Hezbollah leader Sayyed Hasan Nasrallah said the capture of the two soldiers was part of an army campaign that Israel could not stop. "The chief commander of this campaign is Hezbollah," he said. Sounding defiant, he said Hezbollah was not afraid of Israel and would continue launching attacks. I am appealing to the resistance to stop firing so that no harm comes to our fellow citizens Hezbollah's Sayyed Hasan Nasrallah Hezbollah: Israel's 'war option' "Israel will not weaken Hezbollah until it either achieves its objective of destroying this resistance or it decides to pull out of the occupied lands." He urged the anti-Israel resistance to understand that the aggression was against the Lebanese nation and warned of possible retaliation, including targeting Israeli bases. But a senior Western diplomatic source said the capture of the soldiers was an escalation of the conflict that was bound to have consequences. "We've never seen anything like this before, certainly not in 26 years of border fighting," he said. UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon has called on both sides to stop fighting. "I am appealing to the resistance to stop firing so that no harm comes to our fellow citizens," he said.
